

Leonard D. Waterworth
District Engineer and Commanding Officer
U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Galveston District

Col. Leonard (Len) D. Waterworth was commissioned as a 2nd Lieutenant in the U.S. Army from New Mexico State University, Las Cruces, NM was awarded a bachelor's degree in Civil Engineering in 1978. He later earned his two master's degrees; Construction Management from George Washington University, Washington, D.C. and Strategic Studies from the Army War College.

Col. Waterworth's military service includes serving as a combat engineer with the 3d Armored Cavalry Regiment, Ft. Bliss, Texas; a construction company commander at Fort Bliss, Texas, an intern in the Office of the Joint Chief of Staff in the Pentagon, an assignments officer for engineer captains and as the engineer planner for VII Corps during Operations Desert Storm / Desert Shield.

Waterworth also served in Izmir, Turkey assigned to a North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) where he served as the chief of infrastructure.

Upon returning to the United States, he served two years as the commander of the 91st Engineer Battalion, 1st. Cavalry Division, Ft. Hood, Texas before returning to the Pentagon as the engineer branch chief in the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff of the Army, and deputy director for civil works, central region in HQUSACE.

He became the commander of the Galveston District on August 2, 2001.