

Steven Eagle

Steven J. Eagle is a professor of law at George Mason University School of Law in Arlington, Virginia, where he teaches property law, land use regulation, and constitutional law.

Professor Eagle's principal research interest is the nature of private property rights and the extent to which they may be limited under government's police power and power of eminent domain. The third edition of his treatise Regulatory Takings is forthcoming in 2004 from Lexis Publishing. Professor Eagle also is the author of numerous other scholarly and popular works on land use regulation and property rights. He frequently lectures in continuing legal education programs, chairs the Committee on Land Use & Zoning of the American Bar Association Section of Real Property, Probate and Trust Law, and is an elected member of the American Law Institute.

Professor Eagle studied economics at the City College of New York and is a graduate of Yale Law School. He has taught at the law schools of Vanderbilt University,
